GORDON TO HIT GULF
COAST AS HURRICANE: NHC

I Tropical Storm Gordon whipped the southern tip of Florida with high winds and rain on Monday, and was expected to have strengthened into a hurricane by the time it makes landfall along the central U.S. Gulf Coast on Tuesday night, the National Hurricane Center (NHC) said. The storm was forecast to come ashore late on Tuesday near the border between Louisiana and Mississippi, and drop as much as 8 inches of rain in some areas of the U.S. South still reeling from hurricanes a year ago. Gordon was generating winds of 50 miles per hour on Monday as it steamed west-northwest at 16 mph, the NHC said. As the storm crossed Florida's southern tip on Monday morning, officials closed the beaches in Miami-Dade County and warned of possible street flooding. By Monday afternoon the storm had passed over the state. There were no reports of injuries or deaths or damage to any buildings, said Alberto Moscoso, a spokesman for the Florida Division of Emergency Management.

MYANMAR COURT JAILS
REUTERS REPORTERS

2 A Myanmar judge on Monday found two Reuters journalists guilty of breaching a law on state secrets and jailed them for seven years, in a landmark case seen as a test of progress toward democracy in the Southeast Asian country. Yangon northern district judge Ye Lwin said Wa Lone, 32, and Kyaw Soe Oo, 28, breached the colonial-era Official Secrets Act when they collected and obtained confidential documents. "The defendants ... have breached Official Secrets Act section 3.1.c, and are sentenced to seven years," the judge said, adding that the time served since they were detained on Dec. 12 would be taken into account. The defense can appeal the decision to a regional court and then the supreme court. The verdict comes amid mounting pressure on the government of Nobel laureate Aung San Suu Kyi over a security crackdown sparked by attacks by Rohingya Muslim insurgents on security forces in Rakhine State in west Myanmar in August 2017. More than 700,000 stateless Rohingya Muslims have fled into Bangladesh since then, according to U.N. agencies.

FIRE DESTROYS ICONIC NATIONAL MUSEUM OF BRAZIL

3 An aerial view of the National Museum of Brazil is seen after a devastating fire on Monday in Rio de Janeiro. The cause of the catastrophic fire is still unknown. The museum, which is tied to the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro and the Education Ministry, was founded in 1818 by King John VI of Portugal and celebrated its 200th anniversary this year. It houses several landmark collections including Egyptian artifacts and the oldest human fossil found in Brazil. Its collection includes more than 20 million items ranging from archaeological findings to historical memorabilia.

EIGHT SHOT AT SAN BERNARDINO APARTMENT

4 Eight people were shot at a San Bernardino, Calif. apartment complex, including a 17-year-old boy who was in critical condition, police said on Monday. Police in the Southern California city were unsure what motivated the shooting late on Sunday in an outdoor common area where a group of people had gathered, said San Bernardino police spokesman Captain Richard Lawhead. "Right now, nobody is cooperating and providing us with the information we need to help us locate a suspect or what led to the shooting or anything else," Lawhead said in a phone interview. Two people, including the 17-year-old boy, were hospitalized in extremely critical condition, Lawhead said. The conditions of the other six people were not immediately known. Victims were taken to three hospitals. Police initially said 10 people had been hit by gunfire at the apartment complex, but Lawhead later said a total of eight people had been shot. Police had initially received conflicting reports, he said. The shooting happened during a hot holiday weekend in San Bernardino, a city of more than 216,000 residents about 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

FACEBOOK HELPS STATES
MUTE DISSENT: UN EXPERT

5 A U.N. human rights expert urged Facebook on Monday to narrow its "sweeping" definition of terrorism to stop governments arbitrarily blocking legitimate opposition groups and dissenting voices. Fionnuala Ni Aoláin wrote to Facebook chief executive Mark Zuckerberg saying Facebook wrongly treats all non-state groups that use violence in pursuit of any goals as terrorist entities. "The use of such a sweeping definition is particularly worrying in light of a number of governments seeking to stigmatize diverse forms of dissent and opposition (whether peaceful or violent) as terrorism," wrote Ni Aoláin, U.N. special rapporteur on protecting human rights while countering terrorism. Facebook's policy did not take account of rebel armed groups that comply with international humanitarian law, the letter said. She did not give examples, but governments facing armed opposition, such as in Syria, frequently label all their opponents as terrorists, even if other countries do not agree. A Facebook spokeswoman was not immediately available to comment.

Dems slam White House for withholding Kavanaugh documents

Democrats criticized the Trump administration for refusing to release thousands of documents on Brett Kavanaugh ahead of this week's upcoming Senate hearings on his nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kavanaugh, nominated by President Donald Trump, worked in the White House under former President George W. Bush, whose lawyers combed through documents from that time and decided that 27,000 of them were protected under "constitutional privilege."

The White House directed them not to hand them over to the Senate Judiciary Committee, one of Bush's lawyers said in a letter to the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will host the hearings scheduled to start on Tuesday.

Another 102,000 pages of documents related to Kavanaugh's record were not turned over for other reasons. The committee has had access to more than 415,000 pages on Kavanaugh's background, the lawyer said in the letter.

Dick Durbin, the No. 2 Senate Democrat, said in an interview aired on "Fox News Sunday" that the White House's citation of privilege on the documents was the first time that had occurred.

"There has been more concealment of documents that are concerning his public service and his position on issues than ever in the history of the United States ... If he's so proud of his conservative credentials, show us the record," Durbin said.

Democratic Sen. Amy Klobuchar, a Judiciary Committee member, echoed Durbin's concerns in an interview with NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday, saying, "This is not normal."

Republicans have dismissed Democrats' concerns over lack of access to portions of the record on Kavanaugh's background, arguing their criticism is politically motivated.

"Democrats have more than enough information to understand that this is a highly qualified jurist that should be the next Supreme Court justice," Wisconsin U.S. Sen. Ron Johnson, a Republican, said in an interview on ABC's "This Week."

Trump nominated Kavanaugh to be a justice on the U.S. Supreme Court to replace the retiring Justice Anthony Kennedy on July 9.

Kavanaugh must win a majority of the 100-seat Senate to approve his nomination. Most Republicans, who hold a slim majority in the chamber, are expected to back him. REUTERS

Boston MBTA late-night bus service being tested

The later bus service should be a big help to those in the hospitality industry.

SARAH LUOMA
letters@metro.us

The MBTA began testing its late-night bus service this past weekend, expanding its hours for late-working commuters.

The transit service is currently running the late-night service as a pilot program, with buses running from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. every night. Buses will make stops after 2 a.m. in Dorchester, Everett, East Boston, Roxbury, Charlestown, Lynn, surrounding neighborhoods, and Logan Airport.

Aside from the lon-

ger hours, services will also include route variations with stops at locations that better serve commuters, according to Boston 25 News.

"There's the people in the hospitality industry, whether they are doing restaurant work or working at the airport, and then there's also a community of hospital and health care workers that are working in different areas as well," he said. "Those are the guys that work these long shifts or night shifts, and they're needing to get home," MBTA General Manager Luis Ramirez stated.

The MBTA plans to measure ridership during a certain period of time to determine if the late-night bus service should stick around.

This isn't the first time the MBTA has launched a late-night bus service. After two attempts to extend its service hours, the transit system squashed the service due to low ridership. This time, Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack is confident the extended hours and additional suburban service locations will attract more commuters.

"It's a way to more affordably and more reliably get people to [their] jobs in the city of Boston," she said after the meeting.

On Labor Day, Trump hits back at largest union leader

President Donald Trump on Labor Day hit back at Richard Trumka, president of the United States' largest federation of labor unions, after Trumka said on Sunday that the president's policies had hurt American workers.

Trumka, who is head of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO), said on Fox News Sunday of Trump's policies: "Unfortunately, to date, the things that he's done to hurt workers outpace what he's done to help workers."

The AFL-CIO president cited changes to the tax code that encourage companies to outsource jobs; the administration's failure to produce an infrastructure program; and its overturning of regulations, including some protecting health and safety.

Richard Trumka, president of the AFL-CIO GETTY IMAGES

On Monday, which was Labor Day, Trump tweeted that Trumka had represented his union "poorly."

"Some of the things he said were so against [sic] the working men and women of our country, and the success of the U.S. itself, that it is easy to see why unions are doing so poorly," Trump added.

In follow-up tweets, the president hailed economic growth, adding: "The Worker in America is doing better than ever before!" REUTERS

5 Free things to do in Boston this month

Feast on Fluff, jam out at a jazz fest and more.

matthew.juul@metro.us

You're eyes are not deceiving you, September is upon us. While we have to say farewell to the warm summer weather, that doesn't mean the fun has to stop (or even cost a penny). From movies and concerts to food fests and more, here are the best free things to do in Boston this month.

Movies on the Common

There's still time to enjoy a few movies outdoors before the fall chill sets in. The mayor's movie nights continue at the Frog Pond with after dusk screenings of "Black Panther" on Sept. 7 and "Karate Kid" on Sept. 21. Sept. 7 and 21, dusk, Frog Pond, Boston Common, boston.gov

Museum Day 2018

Thanks to the Smithsonian Magazine, museums across the country will offer free admission on Saturday, Sept. 22. Here in Boston, locals can stop by a number of participating venues, including the Museum of African American History, the Nichols House Museum, the USS Constitution Museum, the Mary Baker Eddy Library, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Harvard Museum of Natural History and dozens of other locations around the area. Make sure to snag your ticket online. Sept. 22, various locations, smithsonianmag.com/museumday

MixFest on the Harbor

The annual free concert is switching up its venue for 2018. This year, MixFest will take over the Blue Hills Bank Pavilion in the Seaport. Massachusetts' own Meghan Trainor will headline the festivities, which will also feature performances by Alessia Cara and Jewel. Sept. 22, 1 p.m., Blue Hills Bank Pavilion, 290 Northern Ave., mix1041. radio.com/mixfest-harbor-tickets

What the Fluff?

Who doesn't love a little Fluff? The annual celebration of the sweet treat returns this month to honor Fluff's 101st anniversary. Invented in Somerville's Union Square way back in 1917, the fest pays tribute to Fluff with a day of fun, featuring cooking contests, music and other activities. A slew of food vendors will also be on hand in case you need a break from all that Fluff. Sept. 22, 3 p.m.-7 p.m., Union Square, Somerville, flufffestival.com

Beantown Jazz Festival

Berklee's annual jazz fest is back this month. Billed as Boston's biggest block party and routinely drawing thousands of fans, the festivities include a whole day of live music from jazz, Latin, blues and other artists. Fans can also expect a kids jam, an "instrument petting zoo," plus plenty of food vendors on hand. Sept. 29, Columbus Ave., Boston, berklee.edu/bean-townjazz Berklee's Beantown Jazz Festival takes over the streets of Boston at the end of September.

'The Bobby Brown Story' star on the R&B bad boy's complicated legacy

Woody McClain opens up about portraying Bobby Brown in the new BET miniseries.

matthew.juul@metro.us

Woody McClain can't wait for the world to see "The Bobby Brown Story," especially the fans—and trolls—on Twitter.

The actor, who portrays the titular R&B bad boy in BET's new miniseries, is actually looking forward to the prospect of dealing with misbehaving social media users, which doesn't come as too much of a surprise, as he has some experience in this arena.

"Oh no," McClain says when asked if he's afraid of dealing with Twitter trolls who lash out when the series premieres. "Before I was acting, I was a Twitter troll, so I get it."

That playfully defiant attitude is part of what makes McClain a perfect fit for the series, a dramatization that covers the controversial singer's life and legacy, warts and all.

"This story, it shows you why certain things you read in the media happened," he adds. "It's going to tell you about the love story that he had that nobody knows about. It's going to show you all those things. That's what I'm just extremely excited for the world to see and to read comments on Twitter to see how people feel about."

According to McClain,

the hardest part about playing Brown was figuring out a way to emulate "that Bobby Brown swagger on stage." Thankfully, McClain had the chance to pick the man's brain about all his trade secrets, although don't expect the actor to spill the beans, as he's "locking all that in the vault."

"The Bobby Brown Story" airs Sept. 4-5.
ALL PHOTOS BET

McClain reveals that the new series will mostly tackle Brown's life after his New Edition years, so expect to see much of the focus go to his high-profile relationship with Whitney Houston, as well as Brown's struggles with addiction. The actor admits that what attracted him to the role was the singer's ability to deal with some many obstacles and painful moments, such as the death of Houston and their daughter Bobbi Kristina.

"I want to play characters that overcome the impossible," says McClain. "Who's better than Bobby Brown? He's been through the drugs, he's been through losing his ex-wife, losing his child—and he's still here. He's still strong. He's gotten over the impossible."

Brown's legacy is complicated. On one hand, he's considered to be a musical "legend" by many, including McClain, having "opened doors for a lot of the R&B singers that are out today." On the other hand, Brown's story is forever intertwined with instances of substance abuse, domestic violence and unfortunate tragedies.

Overall, McClain is happy with his work on "The Bobby Brown Story," although he hasn't seen the finished product yet. The actor plans to watch and tweet along with everyone else when it debuts.

"We put so much work and dedication into making a great story," McClain says. "I'm excited that it's finally about to come out."

He adds, "We all going to troll together."

Today we are launching a new service for those of you who are so passionate about sports that simply watching the games on TV or in the stadium is not enough. For all of you who live and breathe sports: love analyzing the games, love the banter on social media, love rooting for your favorite teams and love rooting against your rival. For those of you who are ready to risk your own money to prove the point and feel the thrill of winning. If you're "all-in" on sports, or even if you're just a casual fan, we have something you may like — a new platform with betting advice designed to help you make more educated decisions and beat the odds.

Why we are launching it?

The proverb says that the best is the enemy of the good, but for most of us, good is not good enough. We want better. We want more. It involves the desire to enjoy everything and every moment to the maximum. Watching sports is no exception.

There are millions and millions of people — myself included — who want their sports viewing enhanced. Not by a prettier picture, or by different camera angles, but by making seemingly meaningless sporting events actually mean something. And the easiest way to "make things more interesting" is the idea of winning money while watching the games.

Due to a recent Supreme Court decision, sports betting will soon be available in many states. It's already thriving in New Jersey, with Pennsylvania, New York and Massachusetts soon to follow. It means that in the very near future, most Americans will be able to place bets legally. This is why my Metro colleagues and I are ecstatic to launch MetroBet, a service that will allow you to bet more intelligently and will give you a greater chance of winning. MetroBet will now appear in Metro print on a daily basis and is already starting to gain great momentum online at MetroBet.us.

Why you should bet on us

We are journalists, and quality is very important to us. We double- and triple-check the information that we serve our readers. What's even more important is that we are unbiased and have a strong moral code. We don't have agendas. We simply want you to win, and will live or die trying to deliver you the best content and information to be able to do so.

We aim to give you the latest sports betting information and direction on how to gain an edge. In addition to a boatload of sports betting content, we will also have fantasy sports advice and the latest fantasy news. Of course, as with everything betting should be done in moderation and responsibly. We will also be touching on that subject.

On top of that we will have breaking news on casinos, sports books, and online betting and gaming sites that open up. We will have guides on the best sports books and sites that give you the most bang for your buck.

We aim to raise the stakes. We aim to help you bet better. And to win. As in all sports, the fun is about winning, after all.

2018 NFL season over/under win totals: Go with Pats over and Jets under

MAKE MONEY

MetroBet takes a look at NFL season over/under win

ROBERT CRISCOLA
letters@metro.us

JETS UNDER 6.0 WINS (-125)

The Jets have the look of a team that's a year away from contending for a playoff spot, but they're making all the right moves. Trading Teddy Bridgewater to the Saints signified that the Jets are ready to hand the keys to Sam Darnold. He might make some mistakes early on, but he's shown enough promise in the preseason to justify the organization's faith in him.

However, as Darnold adjusts to the speed of the NFL, the Jets will probably sacrifice some wins as a result. His supporting cast is not exactly a "who's who" of the NFL, as his top wideout might be Terrelle Pryor Jr., and the No. 1 running back is Isaiah Crowell. The Jets' defense is also young and bound to experience some miscues as well.

If everything goes perfectly for the Jets, they might be able to get to .500 thanks to the presence of the Dolphins and Bills, who are expected to finish under .500, in the AFC East. But seldom do things go perfectly in the NFL, where season-ending injuries are far too common. A push on this number would be an encouraging result as the Jets look ahead to 2019.

VIKINGS OVER/UNDER

For the latest

over/under odds on the Vikings, and advice on where you should place your money, please visit MetroBet.us.

EAGLES OVER 10.5 WINS (+105)

The Eagles finished 13-3 and won the Super Bowl despite losing then-MVP contender Carson Wentz to a devastating knee injury in Week 14. His status for Week 1 is unclear, but Nick Foles has already shown he can shoulder the load if need be.

There's negligible change on Philly's offense, as Mike Wallace replaces Torrey Smith as the primary long-ball option. They'll enjoy a full season of Jay Ajayi at tail back after he was brought in at last year's deadline. And Haloti Ngata joins an already-fearsome defense on the front line.

The Super Bowl champs are well-positioned to go over this surprisingly low number.

NEW YORK GIANTS UNDER 7.0 WINS (+140)

The Giants had a chance to draft Darnold, but instead they stuck with 37-year-old Eli Manning, who was never half the quarterback Darnold might become. Instead, the Giants drafted Saquon Barkley, and while he might be a generational running back talent, he can only do so much behind an offensive line that lost Justin Pugh and Weston Richburg. Nate Solder was a great pickup for that unit, but he's just one player trying to fill a two-player void.

The Giants' defense continues to be a liability, and their division is a tough one with the defending champion Eagles and the Cowboys as potential double-digit game winners. Seven wins seems extraordinarily optimistic, especially considering they face the eighth-toughest schedule by win percentage (.520) in the entire league. Lock up the under while the odds are still this good.

PATRIOTS OVER 11.5 WINS (-105)

In spite of all the uproar surrounding Bill Belichick and Tom Brady and their seemingly deteriorating relationship, the Patriots continue to win. They haven't finished below 12-4 since 2009, when they were 10-6. So why is their line set at just 11.5 wins?

Wise guys might point to the departures of such notables as Solder, Brandin Cooks and Dion Lewis, but New England addressed some of those losses by signing Trent Brown (and drafting Isaiah Wynn) to replace Solder and inking Jeremy Hill to fill the shoes of Lewis.

BET OF THE DAY

Rookie NFL head coaches typically do quite well in Week 1. Sean McVay, Sean McDermott and Vance Joseph were all winners in Week 1 last year and rookie coaches have gone 6-3 in Week 1 over the past two years. Gotta like Mike Vrabel and the Titans (-1.5), a playoff team last year, to stomp a weak Miami Dolphins team this Sunday.

- Aries Don't let anyone limit what you can do. Keep your head down and your mind focused on what you are trying to accomplish. A positive change to a partnership can be made.
- Taurus If you want something, go after it. Added discipline will help you follow through and complete whatever mission you take on. An opportunity must not be ignored.
- Gemini Make personal changes rather than trying to mold someone to your satisfaction. Look inward to discover how to best improve who you are and what you can do.
- Cancer Keep an open mind, or you will limit how much you can accomplish. If you try something new and exciting, it will lead to an encounter that will turn out to be substantially beneficial.
- Leo Keep life simple and focus on personal changes that will encourage growth, greater popularity and positive opportunities. Romance will enhance your relationship with a loved one.
- Virgo Step into the spotlight and discuss your plans. Others' suggestions will help you figure out the best way to get what you want without interference or setbacks.

- Libra Show appreciation if someone does something for you. Ignore criticism and offer positive responses to deter anyone showing signs of negativity from doing things you don't like.
- Scorpio Consider the size of an idea or plan and downscale it to fit your budget. Knowing how to make the most of what you've got will bring good results.
- Sagittarius Say what's on your mind if someone is inconsistent or telling you things you doubt are true. Clear the air so that you can move on and focus on what's important.
- Capricorn Choose your battles wisely. Someone will be more aggressive than you anticipated if you are harsh or pushy. Concentrate on getting along with others and getting things done.
- Aquarius If something is working, don't change it. Stick to routine and a diet and exercise regimen that brings good results. Avoid excess and waste. Discuss your intentions.
- Pisces Take on an added responsibility to feel proud and gain control of a situation. A change to the way you do things or how you earn your living will boost your standard of living. EUGENIA LAST
